What is BRCGS certification?

BRCGS (Brand Reputation Compliance Global Standards) certification is a world-class security program that sets the standard for the entire food and beverage supply chain. BRCGS certification was the first standard recognized by the Global Food Safety Initiative (GFSI). As a professional printing and packaging company, obtaining this certification by GFSI validates the highest quality, safety and traceability standards associated with our production chain.

When you use our labels and packaging, our BRCGS certification gives your brand and product the best guarantee of food safety.

BRCGS Audit Process

Achieving this designation requires annual audits to assess our risk management, safety and health systems, manufacturing process control, and upstream and downstream product traceability. The benchmark standards for auditing are among the highest in the industry, allowing us to contribute positively to our customers' production chain.

We will continue to be subject annual audits that assess the health and safety systems we have in place, allowing us to review our risk management.

Protect Your Brand

Although BRCGS certification initially focused on food and beverage packaging, it now covers the entire range of consumer product packaging. Regardless of the sector, every company's labels and packaging must include health and safety guarantees, and this is what the BRCGS standards offer; with strict quality control criteria and accurate identification of all materials used. The entire factory benefits from the standards imposed by BRCGS from the simple unprinted label to the most complex packaging.

Our BRCGS certification gives our labels and packaging international recognition that meets global safety and quality standards. What does this mean for you? You can rest assured that our labels and packaging solutions enhance your brand and that your products then comply with food safety rules and traceability regulations.

At all levels of food manufacturing and supply, you need to be sure that your consumers are protected and that your brand and products are bound by a legal obligation to the global standard for food safety. Our BRCGS certification helps you do just that.
